

SCCE announces the 11th Annual International Compliance & Ethics Awards recipients

Awards presented to The FCPA Blog, UN Global Compact, Kim Lansford, Odell Guyton, and TAMKO Building Products, Inc., Monday, October 5, 2015 at the Compliance & Ethics Awards Dinner, 7-9 PM, ARIA Las Vegas, Las Vegas, NV

Minneapolis, MN, USA---August 11, 2015---Now, compliance & ethics professionals are a regular part of the business senior management structure and government regulators and enforcement leaders have come to recognize the value of compliance & ethics within organizations and institutions. This did not happen overnight or without help. Many individuals, organizations, and corporate leaders have helped to shape and guide the profession, and provide an example for the compliance and business communities.

"Building strong and effective compliance and ethics program is always a struggle, despite the tremendous progress the profession has made," said SCCE Vice President of Membership Development Adam Turteltaub. "It's important that we take time to recognize the individuals and organizations that have done exemplary work in moving the profession forward."

On Monday, October 5, 2015, during the Compliance & Ethics Institute, the Society of Corporate Compliance & Ethics (SCCE) will host the 11th Annual International Compliance & Ethics Awards Dinner and honor:

- The FCPA Blog is being recognized for its contribution to education in the field of compliance & ethics.
- UN Global Compact is being recognized for its promotion of compliance and ethics internationally.
- Kim Lansford, Chief Compliance Officer, Shriners Hospitals for Children, Tampa, Florida, is being honored for the example she sets as a role model for the compliance profession.
